

Rheumatic Throat Is Common Trouble

Should Be Treated in Blood
To Prevent Recurrence.

There are enormous people that ring nerves in the throat, but to prevent their necessary removal, the blood must be run in and out of the body. It is the best way to make the body to produce the remedies to neutralize the poisons in some products and to stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.

Rheumatic throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more salts than the acid nerves can take, and may thus lead to serious complications.

The action of S. S. is adrenalinic excretor. It prevents the accumulation of acids in local areas. It regulates the arteries and draws out the new red blood to replace worn-out tissue.

For this reason every word that binds the throat will cause pain to the breaking-down of the body to secrete healthy mucus. It becomes drawn in a marked impairment of the intake of air, which gives the breathlessness of voice with thick, grating exhalations is overcome.

S. S. is a tonic and a blood bath, since it is well known to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.

S. S. is free of all minerals and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to health.

The Soldier’s Choice.

Little Frederick is a fine, manly chap and so far his over indulgent mother and father have not succeeded in spoiling him.

He spends much of his time marching up and down with a fierce expression on his face, and you are going to see when you grow up, Frederick?" asked his admiring friend of one day.

"Soldier, of course," was the bright reply.

"But you might get killed."

"Who'd kill me?"

"The enemy, naturally."

Then I'll be the enemy," anxiously returned the lad.—National Monthly.

TODAY'S LIVE NEWS OF SUNSHINE STATE

NEWSPAPER MEN STATE WILL BUILD SAY DAWSON CAMP IS A MODEL

Declare that if Colorado Operators had Spirit Shown in New Mexico There Would be no Strike.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Santa Fe, N. M., May 29.—Malone and Ellis, general solicitors and correspondents of the Denver Post, who are touring New Mexico making a write up of the state which will appear in 2,000,000 copies of the big newspaper, arrived here today from the mountains, where they will leave at an important meeting of the chamber of commerce tonight. They have just come from Dawson where they attended the memorial service for the 222 victims of the great mine disaster there last year.

"We were tremendously impressed by the spirit shown by the mine operators," said Malone and Ellis. "Mr. French went to the mine yesterday and among other things stated that arrangements had been made by the state to build a road across the sands east of Hagerman and Lake Arthur. Work is to be started early in July and is to be pushed to completion as soon as possible. The contract will be let with bids and a blood bath, since it is to go to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.

Bedding Out System Urged for Western Sheep Ranches

As a result of experiments during the past few years the department of agriculture is now advocating the use of the bedding-out system of herding sheep on open ranges, instead of the old close-herding system which has heretofore been used.

This system gets its name from the fact that the herder who attends the herd camps and beds his flocks wherever the sheep find themselves at nightfall. Under the old plan he established a fixed camp and bed-ground and drove the sheep back to the same place each night.

Lambs Are Heavier.

Through experience on the national forest ranges last year the department states that lambs from bedded-out herds were five pounds heavier on an average at the end of the season, than those which were trailed to and from established bed-grounds, and that the range can carry from 10 to 25 per cent more sheep than when so much is trampled out in traveling back and forth. The disadvantages of the old system, according to the department were, two-fold: those in the forest range, the sheep were always suffered by being trampled badly, and being actually destroyed at and near the bed-grounds; the sheep lost weight in going to and from the camps, and in dry weather suffered a little from dust and from crowding.

Moreover, under the old system the sheep were kept pretty well bundled; under the new plan they graze at will in scattered, open blocks. During the day the herder moves about in wide circuit around his charges, looking for tracks and sees that none of the sheep have strayed beyond his circle. The sheep are constantly moving over new feed instead of traveling over areas already fed over.

Engineer French and H. W. Vauchet, a local civil engineer, went to Dexter this morning for the purpose of looking into the advisability of certain work in connection with the bridge there. They returned to Roswell at noon today after which Mr. French went on to El Paso.

They will return to Dexter this afternoon to see that Mr. French and Mr. Vauchet discussed the building of the road over the sands and Mr. French then stated that the state would build the road. A request had been made of the state to defray half the expenses of this road and the announcement that the state will do so will enter in the road interesting news to the people interested in the road.

This particular stretch of road over the sands is about three miles in length and is about twenty miles east of Hagerman. When built the people of Hagerman and Lake Arthur will be given a fairly good road to the mining country on the east and the farmers on the plains country will have access to the lower valley points a short distance west of the point where the road crosses the sands the road turns one branch running to Lake Arthur and the other to Hagerman. After the sands stretch has been fixed up considerable work will be done on the remainder of the highway.

Department of Agriculture in Lawn Lesson Tells Why Many People Cannot Make the Grass Grow.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—Bad watering is the cause of almost as many poor lawns as droughts, according to the landscape gardener of the U. S. department of agriculture. Frequent watering of merely the surface of the grass, makes the roots of the grass grow near the surface, and these roots should be made to grow down as deeply as possible in order to secure a fine lawn that will resist the hottest weather of summer.

The best method of watering the grass is to apply a spray from four to twelve hours, the stream being so gentle that water will not collect in sufficient quantities to run off. The water will then sink down into the soil and the roots will grow to greater depth. When this method is used the grass should not be watered often than twice a week and then the amount should be soaked so that the water penetrates for several inches beneath the surface. As a general rule, watering once a week is sufficient to keep a lawn in good condition.

The man who enjoys watering his lawn in the evening for a half hour after returning from work will probably prefer this method to leaving the stream on for a number of hours once a week. If he will divide his lawn into six parts and confine his attention to a different part each evening, he will obtain practically the same results in the long run. Hand watering at night is not an efficient way to water a lawn, as such water does not penetrate the soil.

In fact, it may do harm, for it may remove loose dirt from the grass roots and expose them to drought. The strong stream of a hose should not be used, as it helps to expose the roots unnecessarily.

Many people wonder why drought dries up their lawns in July after they have taken care of them. The combination of hot sun and dry weather makes July undoubtedly the hardest month of lawns and when the roots of the grass are encouraged to grow near the surface by bad watering, and the loose dirt is also removed from them by a hose of strong water power, the results are more disastrous than if the lawn had been left alone.

Unexpected Prescription.

Mr. Norton was a very patient man and a man of good humor. Mrs. Norton provided a continuous flow of conversation, and was known as a nag. Finally the nerves of the poor man gave way, and the physician was called.

"He must have complete rest and undisturbed sleep," said the doctor, as he looked thoughtfully at the woman. "I will send up some sleeping powders for you to use, except as written on the box. Will you promise to do this again, or must I order him to the hospital?"

"Indeed, I promise," cried Mrs. Norton, tearfully. "I will give them just as you direct, doctor."

When the box came from the druggist, the label read:

"Sleeping powder, to be taken night and morning, by Mrs. Norton. In National Monthly."

"If nature had made me an ostrich," said young Mr. Lang, one morning, quite exasperated, "perhaps I could eat your cooking!"

"Yes, wouldn't that be fine?" replied the wife. "Then I would be able to get some new plums for my winter hat."—In National Monthly.

As an extra inducement to those looking for suitable graduation presents, Powell's drug store is offering Parisian ivory at twenty-five per cent discount. Parisian ivory is the deepest, prettiest thing out. It comes in many different forms: puff boxes, military brushes and many other pieces unique and attractive. Powell's has a large stock from which a selection may be made.
